

Masters in Transforming Practice

Admissions Written Task for PACES applicants

The members of the Transforming Practice teaching team thank you for your interest in the route. They would like you to submit, together with your other application documents, a short essay.

Please write 1500-2000 words on 'The role of practitioner research in transforming practice'.

In writing this short essay, please refer explicitly to relevant published research studies, what you learned about research methods and about ethics in practitioner's research during your PPD course, and to your own experience and aspirations. The essay does not have to be extensively referenced, but it should make reference to some relevant research literature on the topic, and offer evidence about your ability to present your thoughts clearly and logically.

Please upload this with your other application documents. Essays beyond the word limit will not be accepted. Please note that applications cannot be considered unless the application form, both references and written work have been received.
